

Learning Sequence

Communication:

- is effective exchange of information and receiving feedback
- Process of sending and receiving messages
- Method of Imparting information through verbal and non-verbal channels
- Using of IEC to convey messages

Examples of Verbal and Non-Verbal Communication

- Gesture
 - Speaking
 - Writing
 - -----
-

Communication Styles

- Talking at high volume
- Tilting head to listen
- Look at the wall while listening
- Rolling up the eyes
- Making Eye Contact
- -----

Factors that can make or break direct communication

- Eye contact
- Personal hygiene
- Jargons
- Technicalities
- -----

Types of Feedback

- I like your idea
- you cannot do your way
- That is not the right way to do
- -----

Communication: ego state

- Parent – Child – Adult
- We always communicate from one of our ego states
- Our feelings determine which ego state we use
- At anytime, something can trigger shift from one state to other
- Depicts the ego states of an individual according to time, place, situation, occasion and people.

Outcome of Communication Gap

- Lack in mutual trust
- No Solution
- Wrong decision
- -----

-
- Time
 - Place
 - Occasion
 - Situation
 - People

Direction In Communication

- Top –down
- Bottom-up
- Free flowing
- Level playing

Basic Facts about Gender Equations in Rural Areas

- Village women wallow in extreme deficiencies of such basics as water and sanitation
- Health care is a commodity for those who can afford

- Primary Health Care are without doctors and medicines
- Pregnant women still die during childbirth due to inaccessibility
- A woman in her status as a Mother, Daughter, Sister, wife, etc, has innumerable correlated duties to perform-practical and strategic

- In general, rural areas suffer from lack of first generation learners putting more strain on the present learners who are burdened with the task of unlearning and relearning the whole generation thereby delaying further scopes for women integration

**